'Voice Care for Educators'

with Speech Pathologist

Debbie Phyland

Teachers are professional voice users. Their voice is their primary teaching tool. They need a voice that is strong, confident and reliable to meet the vocal demands of the classroom. A well-produced voice will carry above the surrounding noise and across the classroom with little effort.

In this workshop specially designed for educators, participants will learn how to:

- Project the voice without strain or effort
- Protect the voice from hoarseness and vocal fatigue
- Use the voice with confidence and authority
- Breathe to teach! Good breathing techniques will strengthen and open up a strong voice
